Falstaff's intentions are...

Useful search tips

- Use key words and phrases
- Keep your search term short
- If you are looking for specific videos, use the 'Refine your search' section on the left hand side to pick out useful information such as performance venue, director and genre

If you don't have anything in particular to search for, it is easy to browse any category and locate interesting footage and information.

How do I watch a video?

The screenshot shows the Alexander Street website interface. At the top, there is a search bar and the Alexander Street logo. Below the navigation bar, the video player is titled 'Theatre in Video: Volume I' and 'View work'. The video player shows a scene from 'As You Like It' with a man in a patterned vest. The video controls at the bottom of the player are circled in red. A callout box points to these controls, stating: 'Video controls including play, repeat, skip and volume are located here'. To the right of the video player is a transcript section with tabs for 'Details', 'Tracks', 'Transcript', 'Clips', and 'Related Do...'. The transcript is currently selected and shows a search bar and a list of dialogue lines with timecodes. A callout box points to the transcript, stating: 'A transcript of the video will play alongside the video allowing for detailed subtitling and exact cues'. Below the video player, there is a title 'As You Like It' and a paragraph of text providing bibliographic details: 'written by William Shakespeare, 1564-1616; directed by Thea Sharrook, 1976-; produced by James Whitbourn, 1963-, Electric Sky, Opus Arte and Globe Theatre, London, England; performed by Philip Bird, fl. 1978-2014, Sophie Duval, fl. 1995-2012, Naomi Frederick, 1976-, Brendan Hughes, fl. 1981-2010, Jack Laskey, fl. 2007-2010, Trevor Martin, fl. 1959-2010, Tim McMullan, fl. 1993-2010, Jamie Parker, 1979-, Laura Rogers, fl. 2010 and Dominic Rowan, 1971- (London, England: Opus Arte, 2010), 2 hours 27 mins'.

The video screen allows you to view a range of data relating to the footage, including performance data, bibliographic details and performer information.

When watching a video, the transcript will automatically play alongside the data in real time. This allows you to follow lyrics, dialogue and conversation in subtitle as they playback in the footage.

If the real time transcript is distracting or is out of sync with the footage (particularly if you are skipping ahead), it is possible to turn off this feature by clicking on the 'Transcript' box above the rolling text.

The right hand section also includes the tracks (or chapters) section, which can be used to navigate the footage to the start of each act/scene/chapter.

Occasionally, the player may struggle with loading and streaming of footage, particularly between chapters, causing the player to jump back to the beginning of the footage. If this occurs, it is best to reload the footage and move the progress bar manually to the place you wish to recommence viewing from.
